American Headquarters in France, Thursday, Nov. 28.—Victory won by the American soldiers in hard fighting and at great sacrifice was the Thanksgiving day gift to the American nation and to the American army, Gen. Pershing paid tribute to the dead and wounded and urged the soldiers to thank God for the victory and declared that a new vision of duty to God and country had come to all American mothers who said, awaiting with loving hearts the home coming of their gallant sons.

Admiral Von Hintze Visits Kaiser to Insist on Real Abdication—Detail Troops to Return This Month 175,000—Officers Named for Peace Conference—England Threatens War Unless Prisoners Are Well Treated

GERMANS RETIRING ORDERLY

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Nov. 30.—State Department advises from The Hague today that Admiral Von Hintze, formerly head of the German navy, has been in Holland to obtain from the former Kaiser a formal proclamation of abdication.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Gen. Pershing has designated for early convoy to the United States a total of 3451 officers and 75,663 men, Gen. March announced today.

The units comprising those men will be made public later. In the list appear entire divisions, the 39th, 76th and 87th. Other troops comprise artillery units and army corps troops.

General March gave out an amended casualty report from General Pershing, giving the official total to Nov. 25 as 262,723 exclusive of prisoners. General March said the total under this head probably would be practically the same as announced last Saturday. The War Department expects to bring back home in the month of December between 150,000 and 175,000 men, General March said. To accomplish this it will use, in addition to army transports and converted cargo boats, enough old battleships and cruisers to furnish an additional carrying capacity for 25,000 men. Shipping experts expect to transport 200,000 men monthly when demobilization is under full speed. To date 45,378 men have been mustered out of the camps in this country. The schedule under which the Department is working calls for the release of an average of 1000 men per camp per day, and General March said that every effort would be made to maintain the average.

Composition of the military personnel to accompany General Bills with the peace delegation was announced by General March today as follows:

4 1-2
PER CENT.

DEPOSITS OF ANY SIZE received, which draw interest from the first of each month.

ZBYSZKO QUILTS TO HUSSANE

The much advertised wrestling match between Hussane and Zbyszko for a reported prize of $1500 evidently did not awaken the fans to the fact that it was a real match it would be well worth seeing, for there was only a fair crowd present and the match was not at all satisfactory.

Hussane won the match when after twelve minutes of wrestling he got a head hold on the champion and held it until the champion fell and had to be helped to his feet. He returned from the ring and did not come back. Hussane was accordingly awarded the decision and whatever went with it. The crowd went away disappointed and wrestling got another jolt.

THE MEN IN CLASS A1

A sound, healthy man is never a back number. A man can be as vigorous and able at seventy as at twenty. Condition, not years, puts you in the discard. A system weakened by over-work and careless living brings old age prematurely. The bodily functions are impaired and unpleasant symptoms appear. The weak spot is generally the kidneys. Keep them clean and in proper working condition and you will generally find yourself in Class A1. Take GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules periodically and your system will always be in working order. Your spirits will be enlivened, your muscles supple, your mind active, and your body capable of hard work.

Don't wait until you have been rejected. Commence to be a first-class man now. Go to your druggist at once. Get a trial box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They are made of the pure, original, imported Haarlem Oil—the kind your great-grandfather used. Two capsules each day will keep you toned up and feeling fine. Money refunded if they do not help you. Remember to ask for the imported GOLD MEDAL Brand. In three sizes, sealed packages.

PROTESTS FLAG HAULED DOWN

London, Nov. 30.—Admiral von Reuter, commander of the German fleet which surrendered to the allies on Nov. 21, has protested against the order of Admiral Sir David Beatty, of the British fleet, directing that the German flag be hauled down. He points out, according to an Admiralty statement, that internment in a British harbor is, under the terms of the armistice, equivalent to internment in a neutral port, where, in accordance with precedent flags are allowed to remain hoisted.

"It is, I think, an unjustifiable and contrary to international custom to order the striking of the flag on German ships. Moreover, in my opinion, the order to strike the flag was not in keeping with the idea of civility between two honorable opponents."

Admiral Beatty, calling attention to the fact that the armistice merely suspended hostilities and that a state of war still exists between Germany and the allies, has replied:

"Under the circumstances, no enemy vessel can be permitted to fly its national ensign in British ports while under custody."

EX-KAISER GUILTY OF INDICTABLE OFFENSE

RESTRICTIONS OFF ON SOFT COAL PRICE

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Nov. 29.—Price restrictions on bituminous coal may be removed by the Fuel Administrator in two weeks. Fuel Administrator Garfield said that he hoped to cancel all price regulations after the middle of December but that he could not take his hands off the hard coal until winter was over. This is taken to indicate that the government will hold the control of the hard coal prices until the end of the coal year April 1.

MOTOR FUEL CHEAPER THAN GASOLINE

Washington, Nov. 29.—"Liberty fuel" vastly cheaper than gasoline and possessing many advantages over that product, has been invented by officers of the war department and is being produced in large quantities.

The new fuel is the result of five months' experiments by Maj. O. B. Zimmerman and Capt. E. C. Welgerberger of the research and development division of the general engineering depot here.

Exhaustive experiments have proved that the new fuel is adapted to all kinds of motor vehicles, stationary engines and airplanes.

Credit for the production of the new fuel is given by Maj. Zimmerman to his colleague, Capt. Welgerber, a gas and oil engineer of wide experience and established reputation.

"Liberty fuel acts completely as a gasoline substitute," said the major.

"It is odorless, tasteless and non-corrosive. Tests for corrosion were made in a motorcycle that covered 23,000 miles of variable operation.

"It leaves less residue of carbon than any gasoline, requires less air or oxygen for combustion and develops greater horsepower."

The force of the explosion of Liberty fuel has been found to be 30 per cent greater than gasoline.

The discovery, which ranks with the greatest of the war, resulted after 27 gasoline substitutes had been produced.

Ingredients are of low cost and can readily be obtained. The process of manufacture is exceedingly simple.

The tests, exact and rigid, were conducted under the supervision of the Bureau of Standards here.

The net results showed that although checked against every commercial grade of gasoline in the highest types of gasoline engines, refined to the limit of engineering knowledge and with no change in the carburetor, it nevertheless develops a greater thermal efficiency than the best gasoline."

Maj. Zimmerman said the cost of the new fuel would be vastly less than that of gasoline. Arrangements will undoubtedly be made so that the public will benefit from the discovery, he said.

(By Associated Press)

The Question of Memorials.

At a meeting of the directors of the American Forestry Association held recently in New York it was decided that trees would constitute appropriate memorials to the American soldiers killed on the battlefields of Europe, and this decision was communicated to Mayor Hylan of New York and the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia in the hope that official action would be taken to secure the planting of trees as memorials to the soldier dead. The president of the association, C. L. Pack of New Jersey, was heartily in favor of the suggestion, and in an address delivered in the evening before the New York section of the Appalachian Mountain Club said he thought no more appropriate memorial could be provided than rows of trees along the principal roads of the country.

And yet there are many who will question the correctness of this view. Most people admire trees and are in favor of tree planting along the roads and in other places where they would add to the beauty of the scenery, but it is a question whether anything so general as trees in all parts of the country would serve as a suitable memorial. One tree or a group of trees in a public park or square might so serve, provided there was a tablet or something else to tell what they stood for, but most country roads are more or less lined with trees at present, and it is to be feared that setting a few more and calling them all "memorial trees" would not create a very serious impression on the public mind.

That most cities and towns will want to erect memorials of some sort to their soldier dead is probable, and the selection of these memorials should not be such a difficult task. The monuments erected to the memory of the soldiers of the Civil War are by no means unsatisfactory. They answer well the purpose for which they were designed and are ornaments to the towns and cities in which they stand.

Something similar would answer very well in the present case, but if variation is wanted it is not necessary to raise shafts of granite or bronze. Memorial buildings would be appropriate, and useful as well, and there are many ways in which a community can express its appreciation of the work done by the brave men on the European battlefields in the cause of universal freedom.

The trouble with trees along the roadsides would be that they would not be sufficiently specific. The people are used to them in all parts of the country, and comparatively few would ever stop to think whether they were memorial trees or not.

However, the suggestion of memorial trees can do no harm. The fact that the question of memorials is already under consideration shows that the people are not unappreciative of what has been done by the men in khaki, and it is safe to assume decisions will be reached when the time comes for action. As this paper has before remarked, the returned soldiers themselves will be their own best memorial for some years to come. And they may well have a voice in deciding how best to perpetuate the memory of those who fell by their side.

There was nothing lacking in the passing around of good cheer in this city on Thanksgiving Day. A generous couple gave a dinner at the Kearsarge House to a large number of worthy poor people, many enlisted men were entertained at dinner in private homes through the action of the War Camp Community Service, and the Salvation Army as usual looked out for many homes which were cheered by the bountiful basket dinners that were sent in. It was a happy Thanksgiving in Portsmouth, and the happiness of many was increased by the consciousness that they had made others happy by sharing their bounty with them.

No man was ever more cordially welcomed to New England than Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, who has just returned from the front to take command of the Department of the Northeast. He is a true soldier and is the idol of the men who have served under him, and is known throughout the country as one worthy of all the honors that have come to him.

General Pershing began the cutting down process immediately after the signing of the armistice, a fact that should not be lost sight of by those who are boozing him for president.

November has been very kind to the people of New England, who may now look for an attack of real winter weather at any time "without warning."

BRITAIN DAY CELEBRATION DECEMBER 7

Closer and firmer the war has drawn the heartstrings of America about Britain. It took this great war to show us Britain as she really is. It took the war to display her pluck and wisdom and courage. It took that same war to make America know her own affections, to know that she loves Britain for her steadfastness, for her never faltering course throughout the trying four and half years when Britain gave in sacrifice 3,043,991 men in the cause of Freedom. Of these casualties 652,655 never will return. They sleep in foreign fields, in Flanders, in France and Belgium, in Egypt, in Mesopotamia, Sibuk, in the jungle-battled fields of East Africa. On every front they have given their lives.

Today Britain definitely knows that up to date she has 652,655 heroes dead, numbering 37,836 officers and 520,829 men. Her wounded men are more than two millions, and there are 360,145 prisoners and men missing. Not only can Britain estimate her price of war in the enormous loss of life and lessened vigor and financial strength. She also has given herself industrially, morally and financially. She has held up her end of the war, and more, and today America is preparing to bow in honor to her great ally and nationally to celebrate Britain's war achievements on December 7.

It will be a fitting honor and will show in a measure the great admiration in which American hearts cherish Britain. Incidents innumerable set up the great unity of thought in America and Britain, as it today exists. The President's approval of the day, Dec. 7, in which to honor Britain gives an official character to the event and certainly adds to its national significance and to its international importance. President Wilson wrote to Judge Alton B. Parker, in answer to an invitation that he attend the Britain Day mass meeting in New York City at the Hippodrome theatre, December 8, as follows:

"The White House,
Washington,
Nov. 8, 1918.
My Dear Judge Parker:

I am very much interested in the plans for celebrating the notable courage and achievements of the army and navy of Great Britain and Ireland and overseas dominions on Sunday afternoon, December 8, as it is with infinite regret that I find myself obliged to say that I cannot be personally present. It is my plain duty to be here, where I can act most promptly upon the matters which seem to mature almost every hour, and I am sure that I should be more true to the common cause by staying here than by being present, much as I should like to join in the party which Great Britain's soldiers and sailors have played in this great war for the freedom of the world."

Sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON!

Hon. Alton B. Parker,
National Headquarters, Britain's Day Committee,

Hotel Belmont, New York, N. Y.

And it may be fitting to remember, along with the President's letter, that about one week ago King George called President Wilson from London: "At this moment of Universal gladness I send you Mr. President, and the people of your great republic a message of congratulation and deep thanks in my own name and in that of the people of this empire."

It is indeed a matter of solemn thanksgiving that the peoples of our two countries akin in spirit as in speech, should today be united in this greatest of democracy's achievements. I thank you and the people of the United States for the high and noble part which you have played in this glorious chapter of history and freedom."

There too may be recorded the graceful appreciation by Admiral Sims of the British navy and the compliment paid to Mr. Lloyd George by Colonel House. There have been many events and incidents which developed the present close relations existing between Great Britain and America. Britain will never forget the fact that Mr. Balfour during his visit to America was admitted to, and delivered an address in our national Congress. Britain has accorded to our ambassadors an infinitely different, more intimate position than that enjoyed by other nation's diplomatic envoys who have come to her.

The long succession of able men who have represented the United States in Britain, who have had so large a share in developing general friendly and close relations, added to the intrinsic likeness of the English speaking peoples, has been the deciding factor in welding closer relations. Whatever in the past held them together, the final cementing of the bond was the cooperation of Britain and America in the war. America's tribute to Britain—nationally celebrated and nationally approved—is one of the most striking incidents of one nation's expression of affection for another. Indications are that it will be celebrated as no other event of its kind ever has been in America—simply, with dignity and enthusiasm.

And while the event is being planned the foundation is being laid for a future continuance of friendship, commercial and social, that will be of estimable value to both countries. England has always, at least in the more recent years, shown a deep interest and sympathy for America. She shows it when she gave her moral support in the Spanish-American war, when the British press widely acclaimed the United States as the champion of the oppressed. At that time one of the most notable verses of the day, one that was published in the London Chronicle just after the formal declaration of war with Spain became so popular that it was recited in drawing rooms, mentioned in theatres and learned by the youth. "Greetings from England!"

"America! dear brother land!
While yet the shoted guns are mute,
Accept a brotherly salute.
A hearty grip of England's hand."

Tomorrow, when the sulphurous glow of war shall dim the stars above, Be sure the star of England's love Is over you come weal, come woe.

Go forth in hope! Go forth in might!
To all your nobler self be true,
That coming times may see in you
The vanguard of the hosts of light.

Though wrathful justice load and train—

Your guns, be every breach they make
A gateway pierced for mercy's sake
That peace may enter in and reign.

Then should the hosts of darkness band
Against you, lowering thund'reously,
Fling the word, brother, o'er the sea
And England at your hand shall stand.

Another appropriate verse which was popularized in England and all of Britain was a welcome to America when she joined in the war. This also appeared in the London Chronicle in 1917:

"No doubts had we, nor need of man's approving;
Clear was our mandate from the Eternal Throne;
We, to the aid of outraged Freedom moving,

Needs must have ventured though we marched alone,

Not all alone nor friendless have we striven,

Comrades marched with us 'gainst embattled sin,

Comrades, the bravest, nearest under Heaven

Yet lacked we one—the nearest of our kin,
Now, as a man who 'mid dear friendly voices,

Hearkened for one sin which the world seemed dumb,

England today, with heart uplifted rejoices.

For thou hast spoken, thou hast said "I come!"

CARRY RICKS

New Comedy Will Be Seen at the Shubert-Plymouth Theatre, Boston, Next Week

Those who read Peter B. Kyne's popular series of "Cappy Ricks" stories that were appearing recently in the Saturday Evening Post will well understand what wonderful fun-making opportunities they offered Edward E. Rose in his dramatization of "Cappy Ricks," which Oliver Morosco will offer for a limited engagement at the Plymouth Theatre, beginning next Monday night (December 2). To those who did not read "Cappy Ricks," there is in store a genuine laughing treat, for no more amusing set of characters, incidents and situations have found their way to the pages of fiction and been brought to life on the stage than those created by Mr. Kyne. "Cappy Ricks" is the story of the San Francisco waterfront, and has to do principally with the business and domestic difficulties of Alden P. Ricks, called "Cappy" by his friends. Being a self-made man who has fought his way from a dock hand to the President of the Blue Star Navigation Company, old Ricks, at the beginning of the story, is what might be termed a "hard-boiled egg." He is a little Napoleon of his company and is not in the habit of being crossed, but in Matt Peasley, one of his employees he finally meets his "Waterloo." In the game of business, while young Peasley, not content with beating Cappy at his own game, incidentally steals his daughter in the bargain. This comedy is one of distinct characterizations, and Mr. Morosco has taken great care in selecting the players. For the title role of "Cappy Ricks" he has been fortunate in securing Charles Abe, one of the best known character actors on the American stage, while the remaining cast includes Robert Kelly, who will be seen in the important role of "Matt Peasley;" Marion Coakley, who has the altogether delightful role of "Florence Ricks;" Percival Moore, who will be seen as "John Skinner," Cappy's general manager; Little Alter, splendidly cast as "Aunt Lucy Bierlett," together with Helen Stewart, Elizabeth Parks, Norval Keedwell, Philip Lord, Thomas Sharer, Bert West, Esther Ballard, and others of equal prominence and worth in the remaining roles. The engagement of "Cappy Ricks" at the Plymouth will be for three weeks only, owing to a previous contract signed for the opening of "Lombardi, Ltd."

At this point it is fitting to recall that Alden P. Ricks, the hero of the story, is the son of the late Oliver Morosco, who has been fortunate in finding a successor in the person of Edward E. Rose, who has been engaged to play the title rôle. The Plymouth is located at 140 Bow Street, and the opening is set for December 2.

To Be Released Dec. 15

WANT PRESIDENT TO RESCIND "NO BEER"

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Nov. 30.—Brewing of beer and other malt beverages will stop at midnight tonight throughout the United States. The special presidential committee which recommended the presidential proclamation prohibiting brewing as a war conservation measure, decided today to make no recommendation to President Wilson or suggestions that the proclamation should be rescinded in view of the air strike.

NAVY YARD NOTES

70,000 Men to Go.

Approximately 70,000 men in the navy will be released from service as soon as possible, under orders sent out by Secretary Daniels. For the most part the men will be from the Naval Reserve and from men who enlisted in the regular service for the duration of the war.

The strength of the navy now is 500,000 men in round numbers. Of this number 290,000 are members of the naval reserve force, which has been inducted into the regular service. About 47,000 other men are enlisted in the regular navy for the duration of the war.

Under the demobilization plan of the navy, about 20 per cent of the duration of the war men and of the reserves will be released. It will probably be possible for any men in the two classes to be transferred to the regular navy if they so desire.

Work Well Advanced

One of the great super dreadnaughts authorized in the 1916 three-year building program is well advanced in construction at the plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company.

The keel of the 33,000-ton battleship was laid after the country went to war and in spite of the call made on this yard for 32 destroyers to fight submarines, work on the big vessel has progressed satisfactorily. The hull has taken shape and probably will be ready for launching within a few months.

This monster man-of-war will mount eight 16-inch rifles in four turrets on the center line, two forward and two aft, and naval officials believe that she will be the equal if not the superior of any warship afloat.

Four of these ships were authorized and another is to be built here and two by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy, Mass.

Whole Band on Vacation

The entire naval band of the local yard are enjoying the special Thanksgiving furlough of seven days.

Enjoying Short Leave

Frank Manning and Charles McNamee, hospital apprentices attached to the yard dispensary are on a furlough.

It now goes before the Supreme War Council for final determination. RED CROSS LINEN SHOWER TODAY

While there was a generous response to the Linen Shower of the Red Cross, at their room at the Elks Home on Friday, there is much more needed to complete the quota of this city. The shower, as already stated, is for the main hospital in France, where the great demand being made upon them has practically exhausted their linen sheets, towels, bath and hand handkerchiefs, etc.

The Red Cross director in France has called upon this country to furnish these supplies, and the call has been issued to all Chapters in this country. There is still today to make your donation to the local Chapter. New or slightly used sheets, etc., are needed, good strong goods rather than fine linen are required.

TWO FROM ELKS HAVE DIED IN SERVICE

The Elks are making preparations for the annual Memorial service, which will be held on Sunday, the first Sunday in December, a day wherever there is a lodge of Elks the memorial service for the dead must be held. The service this year will be all the more solemn from the fact that among the twelve members who have passed away were two in the service of the country.

The services will be held in the Colonial theatre on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and it will be open to the public.

A LITTLE JOURNEY

To the Home of John Francis Sprague in Dover, Maine

History is the truth; ever impartial, never prejudiced.—Sprague's Journal of Maine History.

Dover, in the Piscataquis county, is almost as nearly in the center of the big state of Maine as it would be possible to exactly locate that point without paring off all the rugged lines of coast and boundaries for better mapping purposes, or for a more precise central representation.

For instance, if one takes the large official map of Maine, and in a simple way takes a pin and a piece of string and puts the pin in at Dover, and measures up with the string to where the Saint Francis River runs along "over the top" and divides us from Canada farthest north, the string reversed will run almost exactly to the Kittery line along York river, south. Dover is a little farther over, but not much, from the most extended point of Eastport than from the Oxford county state line at New Hampshire, in the west.

But a gun in Dover or Foxcroft that might shoot just over the New Hampshire line, would also reach east to the town of Rivington, close to the city of Calais, in Washington county, so that if a chisel were to be employed in this measuring with a string, the chisel would take it practically all of Washingtonshire.

A rectangular map, necessary to show the 33,000 irregular square miles of Maine, would waste perhaps four tenths of the paper, if the space were not now devoted to statistical purposes or some other useful information. That is, if one were to fold over in some exact way at the top of that were possible the adjoining Quebec territory that might be shown in the left corner and the New Brunswick portion opposite not included as a map, and then turn up the lower part given over entirely to the Atlantic ocean, the greater part of the state might thus be covered by the folded portions; that is, just for an estimate, an area somewhat less than even the county of Penobscot would be left exposed.

I suppose a little figuring in plane geometry and scaling might fix the proportions of map and other spaces a little more definitely, but my statement is probably almost approximate.

Those of us who live in southern Maine, or southern New Hampshire can hardly realize readily the enormous territory of Maine, or justly appreciate the great extent of its unorganized lands. We are indebted to The Christian Science Monitor for some interesting facts about this matter. Almost one-half of the state is still unorganized; for a bare example, 47 per cent of its area. This territory covers 15,000 square miles, and extends into 11 of the 16 counties. The greater part of it is in the northern section of the state, in the counties of Aroostook, Penobscot, Piscataquis and Somerset.

In the unorganized territory there are, as distinct units, 354 full-sized townships, seven cities, seven towns, two tracts, two surpluses, two points, one parish, one peninsula, and 145 islands. This territory is larger in extent than Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island combined.

Now, nearly all of this great waste of land is above the Dover and Foxcroft line or above the Piscataquis river. Much of it is in the east, and in Washington county, between the Penobscot river and the Passpartout coast.

Dover and Foxcroft are two quiet, busy and pretty little country manufacturing and farming communities. Dover is the Piscataquis county seat with a population of only 2,001, and Foxcroft is smaller with a total of 1,567 inhabitants, according to available figures. The places, almost as one place, are a couple of good sized squares on the map, with the Piscata-quais river running through them. I think this is probably the only thing that separates them. Their interests appear to be exactly the same, but they have managed to properly maintain their separate entities and independent municipal existences, although really living as one larger community. Their interests appear to be more connected, in a way, than Sanford and Springvale, or Bradford and Sac. They have more in common by their location. A handsome, modern, concrete arch, built in 1911, spans the Piscataquis river and connects these twin towns.

Dover and Foxcroft are surrounded by such interesting and historic places as Sangerville and Gullford, Hersey and Sebec Lake. Sangerville was the birthplace, 1840, of the late Sir Hiram Maxim, who in 1901 was knighted in recognition of his services to the British nation.

Dover was the birthplace of the late Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, the noted temperance leader. She was born there in 1848. The Piscataquis Historical society is to honor their memories in an appropriate way by tablets and other means. History is a living issue in these younger communities.

However, sentimentally at least Dover and Foxcroft are quite within the heart of Maine to many historians and lovers of the state. It is truly here and there that the historian, the Honorable John Francis Sprague, quietly lives in both communities. I might say very properly that he lives in every organized part of the state, and beyond its boundaries:

John Francis Sprague is the editor and publisher of "Sprague's Journal of Maine History," one of the finest of our state publications. He was the founder of this Journal, in 1913, and is the owner of it. The "Journal" now well into its sixth volume, is well established, and is faultlessly printed at the Sentinel office in Waterville, quarterly, and with a special edition annually, making five handsome numbers to each of the carefully indexed volume. The sixth volume, now being issued, promises to be better and broader than ever.

The work of editing and publishing "Sprague's Journal of Maine History" is considerable of a task, and largely a labor of love; and can hardly be anything more from a material standpoint. The material considerations and profits are only incidental features; and the profits are necessarily limited. And while the work undoubtedly has such good support as to insure the continuation of the issues so long as the present editor may be spared, a major portion of the reward is only in that silent but substantial and permanent appreciation which does not show as a matter of many subscribers or in big figures in subscriptions. About 1,600 copies are being printed, with some 1,400 regular subscribers. I believe that Maine ought to become more generally interested in this enterprise and in the man who has labored so kindly to produce something of so great benefit to the state.

John Francis Sprague, as well as Sir Hiram Maxim, was born in Sangerville, and quite a while ago too, on July 16, 1848, and is a descendant of William Sprague who was born in England in 1609 and emigrated to Salem, Mass., in 1623, and later was located in Charlestown, and later still at Uingham, Mass.

Editor Sprague was educated in the common schools at the Broadwater Mills district in Sangerville; was admitted to the Piscataquis bar in 1874; commenced the practice of law at Abbott village, that year, and moved to Monson in 1879, where he resided until 1910, when he moved to Dover, where he has since been of such service to the state in historical research and in publishing. I suppose that he is now almost as widely known personally as the venerable Honorable James Phinney Baxter of Portland whose work has been the wonder of the state and the country. He has repeatedly been a member of the Maine house of representatives.

He is at present referee in bankruptcy for Piscataquis county; a trustee of Monson academy; a member of the Maine Historical society, and president of the Piscataquis Historical society; a member and president of the Maine society, S. A. R.; a member and president of the Maine Sportsmen's association; and an "Old Folks" and Mason, in both of which last organizations he has been a worker and an officer.

The members of the Maine legislature, in both the senate and the house, speak of him with the highest regard. I am indebted to former Senator Aaron B. Cole of Kittery for some very fine personal tributes to Editor Sprague by reason of the acquaintance between these two gentlemen in the legislature.

This is a somewhat formal sketch of the man who holds that "History is the truth; ever impartial; never prejudiced," and who holds to this straight course with cordial and tireless devotion.

The books of John Francis Sprague include at present some very fine volumes on local and state history, such as "Piscataquis Biography and Fragments"; "Abolition Rule, a Maine Tragedy of the Eighteenth Century"; and "Backwoods Sketches," each of which now sells at $1.00; "The North Eastern Boundary Controversy and the Aroostook War," at $1.25, and a short work on "Accidental Shootings in the Game Season," at 25 cents. He has also written a history of Doric

Washington, Nov. 23.—Boston, New York, Newport News and Charleston, are the ports the War Department plan to have the returning soldiers come to. In this wide distribution of ports and with the addition of the little German ships in German ports, which will be used, the most careful estimate of the time required will be eight months before the last of the American soldiers can be returned and possibly ten months.

RETURN TO TWO-CENT POSTAGE DECIDED ON:

Washington, Nov. 30.—Repeal of the increased postage rates was approved Friday by the Senate Finance Committee. Amendments to the war revenue bill were adopted to abolish the zone increase on second-class rates, with a proviso that the rate shall be 1 1/2 cents per pound beyond a 200-mile radius, and also for repeal of the extra cent per ounce postage on letters.

The change in second-class postage under the committee's amendment would become effective upon enactment of the bill, while that reducing first-class postage rates would be effective July 1 next.

Many publishers, particularly those of magazines, have attacked the existing zone system as unjust. The amendment is designed to meet the general desire of newspaper publishers for a fair rate within their principal distribution areas and also to make more equitable the second-class rates outside of the 200-mile limit. The amendment to reduce the letter rate which was offered by Senator Gore of Oklahoma, Democrat, would reduce Government revenues about $70,000,000.

CONFUSION OVER WAR CONTRACTS

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Nov. 29.—The government's matured plan for the cancellation of contracts with the minimum of disturbance to industries, was thrown into confusion today by the decision of the Comptroller of War which orders placed by telegraph, telephone and mouth, are not binding and will not be considered in the adjustment of the contract losses.

Secretary Baker announced that the War Department would see to their own cancellation of orders and will the least disturbance to business. The difference of opinion will be put up by Attorney Gregory to decide and possibly some legislation by Congress will be asked immediately.

"Hindle Wakes" is recounted the story, with mingled scenes of emotion and comedy, of a Bank Holiday weekend. The heroine is a weaver-lass who is employed in the mill that gives a living to the inhabitants of the town. She falls in love out of her station in life with the son of a wealthy mill-owner. Contrary to the usual custom in such cases, the father of her lover insists upon his son's marrying her, and still more unconventionally she refuses at the last moment. For she realizes the lifetime of unhappiness that will come to her with the wholly undesirable husband he bids fair to be.

"Hindle Wakes" has been acclaimed from every standpoint as a wholly sterling and sincere drama of actual and unusual conditions. One critic has called it "a realistic study of working folk, of their strength and their weaknesses," and another has said that it is "a poignant drama of unmistakably genuine Lancashire life and character." It made the immediate fame of Mr. Houghton, and but for his untimely death he would have risen to a high rank among present-day English dramatists.

At the Copley Theatre "Hindle Wakes" is staged under Henry Jewett's personal direction. The cast includes eight people and calls upon the artistic skill of Phyllis Ralph, Viola Touch, Jessamine Newcome, E. E. Clivio, Noel Leslie, H. Conway Wingfield, and Fred W. Perriman. Lord Dunstan's one act comedy, "The Lost Silk Hat" is acted as a curtain raiser.

COPLEY THEATRE.

The popularity of "Hindle Wakes" as acted by the Henry Jewett Players at the Copley Theatre is so great that it will be continued for a third week beginning next Monday. It is a three act drama of stirring events that take place among the people of an English factory town. Its author is Stanley Houghton, one of the famous Manchester school of English dramatists who in recent years have made some valuable contributions to the English drama, and whose work has become widely known in this country.

In "Hindle Wakes" is recounted the story, with mingled scenes of emotion and comedy, of a Bank Holiday weekend. THE SURRENDER OF THE GERMAN FLEET.

Ship after ship, and every one with a high sounding name! From the robber nest of Heligoland the German war fleet came; Not victory or death they sought, but a rendezvous of shame!

Sing out, sing out,
A joyful shout,
Ye lovers of the sea!
The "Kaiser" and the "Kaisrin,"
The "Konig" and the "Prinz,"
The potenates of piracy,
Are coming to surrender
And the ocean shall be free.

They never dares the final fate of battle on the blue.
Their sea-wolves murdered merchant
men and mocked the drowning crew,
They stained the wave with martyr-blood, but—we sent our transports through!

What flags are there that dumbly droop from the gaff o' the malinast tall?

The black of the Kaiser's Iron cross,
The red of the Empire's fall?

Come down, come down, ye pirate flags—yea, strike your colors all!

The Union Jack and the Tricolor and the Starry Flag o' the West!

Shall guard the fruit of Freedom's war and the victory contest,

The flags of the brave and just and free shall rule on the ocean's breast.

Sing out, sing out,
A mighty shout,

Ye lovers of the sea!

The "Kaiser" and the "Kaisrin,"
The "Konig" and the "Prinz,"

The other lords of death and sin,

They're going to their's surrender,

And the ocean shall be free.

PAULINE, THE BEAUTIFUL.

Ah! who is this lady straight staring ahead?
With eyes large and soulful and lips bright and red?

Such scrupulous beauty! the neck of a swan!

Her queenly-like features mine eyes marvel on.

'Tis Pauline, the beautiful light of my life!

And being an angel she'd make a sweet wife;

But this is preposterous still I can say

No distance, no power can steal her away

From my heart fully captured by Cupid's cruel bow.

Her lips are the sweetest of any I know

And on her sweet mem'ry I ere we must sever.

Shall fall many tears, Oh! forever and ever.

EVERYBODY HAPPY.

Everybody has that happy look and feeling due to the relaxation from the war strain and the knowledge that the boys who were sent over there and supported in every way possible have done a large share to save civilization. Everyone is also in the right frame of mind to thoroughly enjoy any good time. Therefore all will be pleased to know that the McNeilly's Singing Orchestra, the one so long and favorably known here, will appear at Freeman's hall under the auspices of W. H. Dow, again Tuesday evening, Dec. 3, Concert 8 to $1.50. Dancing 8:45 to 12:30. SHOOTING CASE
IN COURT TODAY

La Ratando Says He Acted in Self Defense; Is Fined $116 on New Charge.

The case against Leonardo La Ratando, charged with assault on John Lafaele with intent to kill, which was postponed from last Saturday, was brought up in the municipal court today and disposed of under a different charge. It appears that La Ratando in a certain degree acted in self defense. The men were alone at the time of the argument in a house on Russell street when La Ratando made a statement that money had been stolen from him. He is alleged to have sold some thing in the way of a hat to Lafaele about the missing money which he represented by drawing a razor.

La Ratando said he feared action on the part of Lafaele with the razor and pulled the gun and shot him.

On the evidence surrounding the case the charge against La Ratando was changed to aggravated assault to which he pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $100 and costs of court, amounting to $116.
